FIRED AT A JEALOUS MAN.

Michael Montgomery Resents a Fusillade of Brickbats. Jealousy caused trouble in "Bucktown" last night. Michael Montgomery, a colored man who is employed as coachman for Harry Bliss, of Woodruff Place, has been paying attentions recently to Lizzie Williams, a young widow who lives with the family of Lee Coates, at the corner of Elizabeth and Locke streets. It seems that the widow had discarded one Robert James for Montgomery and this brought about an enmity in the breast of James for his rival. Sunday Montgomery escorted Mrs. Williams to Haughville and, as they took a car for the city, they encountered James. James was in an ugly humor and took the opportunity to "declare" himself. He threatened all manner of punishment for his rival and expressed his opinion of the treatment he had received at the hands of or across the public streets of any city be-Mrs. Williams. All took the same car for town and there was more or less quarreling on the way in, but no trouble of consequence occurred.

house where Mrs. Williams was at work and he attempted to settle the differences between them then and there, but she ran into the house and claims that he followed her, flourishing a big knife. Last night Montgomery called on Mrs. Williams and the two were enjoying the cool breezes upon the front porch when James came along. The sight of the two thus engaged must have been a great shock to him for he immediately began to hurl brickbats and bowlders upon the loving couple. One missile struck Mrs. Williams and others were flying in dangerous proximity to their heads. Montgomery ran into the house, secured a revolver and took a shot at James. Only one shot did he fire, for by the time that had sounded on the still night air James had placed a safe distance between himsen and the deadly weapon. From the reports received at the police station it would appear that James is running yet. Montgomery was arrested at 11 o'clock, shortly after the trouble occurred, and was slated at the police station on the charge of shooting with intent James escaped. The stone which struck Mrs. Williams was a large oue and she received it in the breast. She fainted forthwith and it was supposed she was killed, but a physician quickly revived her and it was found that she was not badly

CORN FINE EVERYWHERE.

The Crop Report Continues to Gladden the Farmer's Heart.

The following is the weekly crop bulletin issued yesterday for the central station, Indianapolis:

"Warm, fair weather prevailed, with scattered local rains; excellent weather for growing crops and harvest work. Corn is in fine condition where. It is in silk and tassel. Potatoes promise a very large crop, while in some localities they are maturing; in a few planting is not done yet; tobacco is growing finely and looks well. All vegetables are in good condition; beans are up and growing nicely; tomatoes are in the best of condition and melons are ripening. Wheat and rye threshing is nearly done: the oats harvest has commenced, promising an excellent crop. Haying continues in many meadows; the erop is better than expected. Timothy cutting continues; plenty of fruit, except apples; peaches are ripening early and there is a great crop of blackberries. Pasturage and stock are in good condition. Chinch bugs are in some corn fields and the smut in some oats. Rain is needed in localities of the central portion.

Garment Workers Organized. President Gompers and Secretary Mc-Craith, of the American Federation of Labor, organized a new union at Mansur Hall last night. The membership is made up largely of women employed in the difthe city. The new union is to be known as women signed the membership roll. Mrs. was elected president and Jennie joined. Another meeting will be held in the same hall a week from next Monday night, when the organization will be completed.

Postage Reform. John H. Patterson, of Chicago, editor of the Postal Reformer of that city, is at the Grand Hotel. Mr. Patterson is interested in the passage by Congress of what is known as the Loud bill, a measure to throw novels and serial publications into the third class, and charge them 8 cents a pound instead of 1.

COURT REVERSES ITSELF

JUDGE BROWN GRANTS INJUNCTION AGAINST STREET-CAR COMPANY.

Finally Holds that Council Must First Grant the Company Permission to Enter Streets.

Judge Brown, of the Marion Circuit Court, rendered a decision yesterday morning in the street car injunction case which overrules his former decision in the same it asked for some time ago.

Late one night the company served noconstruct a line on Bellefontaine street. Cornell avenue and other streets. For several months the city had been endeavoring to get the company to make certain repairs on its tracks, notably bringing them to the street grade in many of the down-town streets. The company had pleaded poverty when asked to do this work and the city authorities could not see any good reason for spending large sums of money on extensions until the old tracks were placed in proper condition. Then, too, there was a principle at stake. The company claimed the right to enter any street at any time and occupy it with tracks. This the city authorities thought exceeded the company's rights and a suit was filed the afternoon that work was begun on the Bellefontaine street line, asking for an injunction to prevent the company from entering the street without permission from the Board of Works. On this petition Judge Brown granted a temporary restraining order.

Later the case came up for preliminary hearing and the restraining order was dissolved. Then the city asked permission to amend its petition and paragraphs three and four were filed. About two weeks ago the case was argued again with the additional paragraphs of the complaint. Judge ment and yesterday gave his decision, and William A. Ketcham made brief re-overruling his former decision and granting the temporary injunction on the secaint. Ferdinand Winter and W. H. H. Miller, for the company, heard the decision read and gave notice that they would appeal. Thirty days was granted in which to file a bill Brown is as follows:

CHANGES HIS OPINION. "When the case was last before me motion for a temporary injunction on the second paragraph of the complaint was denied. In that paragraph it is alleged that no one of the lines operated by the defendant in Indianapolis is located upon or enters upon the streets in the complaint set out, being the streets in controversy, and that no permission of any kind whatsoever had been given by said Board of Public Works to the defendant corporation to enter upon and dig into any of the said streets, etc., but notwithstanding the fact that no permission had been given by said board so to do, the defendant company has entered upon the streets and is digging into the same without any right whatever. This question is in no way involved in the suit pending between the same parties in Hamilton county. It seemed to me then that the case here presented could not be distinguished from the case of the city of Indianapolis vs. the Consumers' Gas Trust Company, 140 Ind., 107. After a fuller argument at the last hearing and after a more thorough investigation than I was able to give the question at that time I greatly loubt the correctness of that position. The distinction, however, does not lie in the fact that in the gas company case the structure had been completed before the street was improved, because that case expressly decides that the gas company, by its contract with the city, had the right to lay, extend and maintain its pipes in all streets named in the contract. Any ordinullifying that right could I considered this question fully when this case was last before me. In the general law under which the defendant company is organized we find, however, the following provision: 'Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to take away from the Common Council of corporate cities the exclusive power now exercised over the streets, highways, alleys and bridges within corporate limits of such cities, and all street railway companies that shall be organized under the provisions of this act shall first obtain the consent of the Common Council to the location, survey and construction of any street railroad through fore the construction of the same shall be commenced.' No such provisions are contained in the statute under which the Consumers' Gas Trust Company was organized. My attention was not called to nor did I notice this difference when I last examined Yesterday James was driving by the this question. MUST OBTAIN COUNCIL'S CONSENT "The first part of this provision in the general law, that is as to the control of the streets, gives no additional power to the city of Indianapolis over its streets. It was inserted only for the purpose of implied authority granted by the act for bargaining away its exclusive right to control the streets of the city.

> dently inserted for the purpose of making should first obtain the consent of the Common Council to the location, survey and construction of any street railroad through or across the public streets of the city before the construction of the same should be commenced. This is conceded by the defendant company, but it insists that it obtained such consent when it commenced its system some thirty years ago. and it is not bound to procure the consent of the city for each individual street it desires to use under the terms of its contract as the city grows and as it desires to extend its system. At first glance the case of Africa vs. Board, Mayor and Aldermen, 70 Fed. Rep., 729, seems to sustain this theory. But by an examination of the general law, under which the streetrailway there in question was organized. and a comparison of the same with the general law governing street railways in our State, the distinction is obvious. The law, as I construe it, permitted a plan or system to be consented to by the city, without the city having any voice as to that plan, while our law does nothing of the kind. The consent provided for by the general law, in that case, was simply to use the streets; the rules and regulations were to be and were prescribed by the city authorities, and they were to and had to be observed by the company, and, of course, after the city had given its consent to the use of the streets and the contract had been entered into, their use could not be denied by an ordinance prescribing rules and regulations, nor could they be interfered with by repealing the ordinance. FOR EACH PARTICULAR STREET.

"In the case at bar, it was, as it seems to me, part of their contract written into the general law that the company should get the consent of the city, through its proper authorities, to the location, survey, construction, etc. The consent to the location and survey over all the streets means something more than getting the consent to use and lay rails upon the streets. In one case the contract was a finished fact when the use was granted by the Council, in the other the contract carries with it the obligation on the part of the company to procure the consent to the location, survey and construction before it can proceed. Consent to use all the streets is, as I think, limited to such ferent overall and tailoring factories of streets as the Council may consent to locate, and the further consent to the sur-Garment Workers' Union 127, United Gar- vey and construction of its lines along and ment Workers of America. Several men also streets and in prescribing rules and regulations as to the manner of such use, has consented to the system when the contract sed, and in the other cases the general law contemplated that the city should have a voice in the system or plan and an opportunity to say, While you have a right to the use of all the streets of the city for the purpose of laying your tracks upon them, still, by the very terms of your ontract, that right is subject to our per-We have a right to have a voice as to your system or plan.' As Judge Woods aptly puts it in his opinion in 64 Fed. Rep., 655: 'By its own charter, as I construe it, indeed, according to the plain contained in the ordinance of Jan. 18, 1864, or in the supplementary ordinance of Sept. 18, 1865. Besides, the entry of complainant upon those streets was in violation of the ordinances of 1889 and 1893. The question whether the last named ordinances are valid or need not be considered, beno right to enter upon a street without the consent of the city, and the city was free, with or without reason, to give or withhold its consent. "I did not investigate this question before because I considered it closed by the gas company case. The argument was directed mainly to the right of the city to pass an ordinance as a police regulation. And if the question had to be decided upon the right of the city to pass the ordinance as a police regulation simply, the gas company case was conclusive upon this subject and binding upon me, no matter what the federal judges or other courts might have decided. But taking into consideration the difference between the statutes under case. This gives the city the injunction | which the gas company case arose, and the statute here involved, I am of the opinion that the case does not control. 'I have given considerable consideration tice on the Board of Works, through Mr. to the question rising on the motion for a Downing, at his residence, that it would temporary injunction as to the third and fourth paragraphs of the complaint, but inasmuch as a temporary injunction has to be granted. I have decided not to decide the questions here raised until the final hearing of the cause. Mayor Taggart and the members of the Board of Works were very much elated over the victory of the city. It is the first time the city has won a victory in a suit against the Citizens' Street-railroad Company. Mr. Downing said it was only comsense to decide that the city has a right to control its own streets. Mr. Austin says the company will not get permission to occupy a street until it makes a suitable agreement to pave its portion of the streets.

In life on Shannon's fumble, but Baker flew doing so he said: "I have known Judge Rand for a long time; more than a quarter of exceptions. The decision of Judge of a century ago we occupied adjoining offices. I met him daily. He was a noble man all that goes to make one; honest, true, sincere, he never deserted a friend. We do well to thus pay respect to that good man." The following was then presented by Mr. Elliott and was adopted:

"The death of Frederick Rand has taken from our bar a venerable and honored member. Lives such as his ennoble and exalt our profession, and to his memory we owe profound respect which is sincerely given. For many years our deceased prother was an active and useful lawyer, giving credit to the profession by his of character, his high sense of and profound love of justice. Born of New England parents, he inherited the sterling qualities of head and heart which have made the sons of New England such potent factors in the affairs of government and of business life. His seventy-seven years of life were years of usefulness and honor. His convictions were the product of conscientious thought, and he adhered to them with unflinching firmness. "His mental qualities were strong, not orilliant. He grasped with strength the important points of a forensic controversy and he presented them in argument with force and clearness. The sparkling gems of rhetoric he may have lacked, but the power of logic he did not lack. He was a laborious student and rich in the learning of the law. He despised trickery and chicanery of every sort, and fought legal contests upon broad principles by honorable means. He was true to the interests of his clients, careful in the preparation of his cases, fair to the court and to his opponents. As a judge he was impartial, industrious and painstaking. His purpose was to do justice and he did it effectively and manfully. "He heard evidence and argument with patience and deep attention, and he gave adgments with deliberation and with an earnest desire to vindicate the right. In all positions as judge and lawyer as citizen and friend, he was a man entitled to honor and respect, and honor and respect were ungrudgingly awarded him by all who knew him. CREEK RACES

WIND WAS TOO STRONG FOR FAST TIME BY CYCLERS YESTERDAY.

Half-Mile Professional Won by Bald, and the Two-Mile Event by Mertons-Good Work by Cooper.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., July 13.-A high wind, accompanied by a driving rain late in the afternoon, somewhat marred expectations at the Grand Circuit bicycle races here to-day. The wind made it impossible for the riders to show anything in the way of speed. The attendance was light on account of unfavorable weather. Gardiner and Zeigler are the only two of the leading crack riders who failed to start. The track was very fast but for the wind. The halfmile open professional was the event in which interest centered. There were thirty-six entries and it was run in three heats with three to qualify. The first heat went to Cooper, Schrein and E. C. Johnson in the order named. The second went to Bald, Loughead and Baker, and the third to Bliss, L. C. Johnson, Sanger and Parker. This brought all the big guns together in the final. Parker set the pace to the quarter, where Bald came up. At the turn Parker's chain broke. In order to avoid a smashup Cooper was forced out and around before he could clear, but it was too late, and in spite of a brilliant effort Bald won by several lengths. woman never really knows the meaning of happiness and is the mother of a healthy, happy child. She never reaches the full degree of womanly derelopment until she has felt the pleasing responsibilities o aternity. All this happiness may be marred or may be turned into misery if the child is not a healthy child. The health of the child depends on the health of the mother, both before and after birth. Heredity is strong, and it is every woman's duty to give her children the best possible chance in life. Nothing that she could possibly give them can be as valuable as health. Wealth cannot be enjoyed without health.

Nothing can be enjoyed without health.
Health is life. People who are not healthy are only half alive. The child who starts out with a robust body and vigorous, virile health, has everything to be thankful for and nothing to be afraid of. You cannot expect such a child to spring from a weak and sickly mother. Most all of woman's weakness and particularly the weakness that most strongly influences the health of children, comes from some derangement or disease of the distinctly feminine organs. All such trouble is as unnecessary as it is terribly distressing. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all troubles of this nature. There is no guess-work about this statement, and there is no qualification. The "Favorite Prescription" should be used promptly and persistently until the symptoms entirely disappear. In every case, it restores perfect health and strength and assists in the healthful and regular performances of all the natural functions. The "Favorite Prescription" should be taken regularly by every woman during the entire period of gestation. It gives strength to all the organs involved, lessens the pains and danger of childbirth and insures the health of both mother and child.

Thus the Australian had a terrible task to reduce his weight. He indulged day after day in the most violent exercise, and frequently brought on severe his work had been better systematized, and when he entered his boat to-day he weighed thirteen stone. Ministers Should Use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

HERE IS NO PROFESSION, whose labors so severely tax the nervous system, as that of the ministry.
